

CENTER OF EXCELLENCE IN LEADERSHIP OF LEARNING

November 12 – November 13, 2007
Indianapolis Marriott Downtown

Indiana's Future:

Equity, Engagement & Education for Economic Success

Transforming Today's Schools for Tomorrow's World

Sponsored by Experts from across the nation. More than 70 breakout sessions.

Real solutions to today's most pressing educational issues.

<http://cell.uindy.edu/indianasfuture2007>

KEYNOTES:

Equity & Excellence in a Time of Profound Change—Arthur Levine,
Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation

Tough Choices or Tough Times: An Equity & Quality Agenda for the 21st Century—Marc Tucker, National Center on Education and the Economy

Courageous Conversations About Race: Strategies for Achieving Equity in Indiana's Schools—Glenn Singleton, Pacific Educational Group

Who is Matthew? A Child or a Label?
—Beth Harry, University of Miami

BREAKOUT SESSIONS:

- Science, Technology, Engineering, & Math
- Bridging the Gap to Higher Education
- Technology for Student Engagement
- Promising Math & Literacy Practices
- Economic/Workforce Development
- Governmental Policies for Reform
- Student Voice for School Change
- Innovative School Models
- Leadership Development
- Cultural Awareness
- Much More!

equity
in all its forms to promote access to opportunities for all students.

engagement of schools, communities, businesses, higher education institutions, and government for positive educational change.

education
resources on best practices, strategies and models for school improvement.

economic development initiatives connected to education success.

exchanges and conversations leading to collaborations among stakeholders at all levels to move Indiana forward.

cell uindy

Indiana's Future is sponsored by

This event is hosted by the University of Indianapolis' Center of Excellence in Leadership of Learning and is supported in part by Lilly Endowment Inc. and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. Additional support provided through the offices of Indiana Governor Mitch Daniels and Superintendent of Public Instruction Suellen Reed.